Congress Drawing to a Close. Special to the Indianapolis Journal. Washington, Sept. 27.—The labors of the first session of the Fifty-first Congress are rapidly drawing to a close. Major McKinley to-night achieved the triumph, so far as the House is concerned, for which he has been laboring for the past nine months. By a vote of 152 to 81, the conference report upon the tariff bill, as presented yesterday, was agreed to in the House amid an inspiring scene. The five-hour debate was closed by the able chairman of the comclosed by the able chairman of the com-mittee on ways and means in a ringing speech of seven or eight minutes, almost every sentence being punctuated with applause. Major McKinley said that almost word for word the criticisms against the bill which had been uttered by the gentlemen in opposition to the report he had previously read in extracts and translations from European papers upon the subject of the tariff. It was plain to be seen that Great Britain and the Democratic party of the United States were in unholy alliance. He asserted that the high position attained by the United States as the first manufacturing country in the world had been se-cured through the efforts of the policy of the Republican party, and of the Whig party, which had preceded it, by which the American market had been secured to the American producer. The gentlemen on the other side, he said, preferred to tax themselves to raise the revenue for the government, but himself and his associates, who believed in the principles of protection, preferred that the products of other nations seeking a market in this country should be taxed for the ment. He spoke of the proposed indus-tries to be established and fostered by the bill under consideration, and said that they would give employment to fifty thousand men, who would become the consumers of the products of the farms of the western

The Major's ringing sentences created en-thusiasm among the Republicans on the floor and the spectators in the galleries, and when the Speaker's gavel fell a round of tumultuous applause greeted him as he resumed his seat. The Democrats had resonsidered their determination to delay unnecessarily the consideration of the conference report, and by demanding the yeas and nays on the motion to order the previous question no delay occurred. This roll-call was immediately followed by that upon the passage of the bill itself, with the result stated above. With the tariff bill in its present position adjournment of Congress is in sight. The House, before adjourning, adopted a resolution reported by the committee on ways and means providing for adjournment at 2 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, the 30th part of the country.

The leaders of the Senate, Republicans and Democrats, will endeavor to expedite consideration of the bill in that body so as to accommodate the House in the desire for adjournment, but proceedings in the Benate are usually very uncertain. If any of the Senators desire to postpone or delay action under the rules they have the power to do so, but the probabilities are that final action will be taken upon the bill by Tuesday at the furthest, and adjournment will follow the next day. The attitude of some of the Northwestern Senators toward the conference report is the subject of concern to those in charge of it. Senator Paddock still maists that he will vote against the bill, and this afternoon he stated that Mesers. Plumb, Ingalis and Pettigrew had expressed to him their approval of the position he had taken, and declared their intention to support him in it. This was not confirmed by those most intimately trusted. Senator Ingalls late this afternoon said that he had not yet determined whether he would vote against the bill or not. Senator Plumb is paired with Senator Vest, but, of course, if be decided to vote against the bill the pair will not stand, because the position of Senator Vest to it is, of course, well known. But Senator Pettigrew may support Senator Paddock in his determination to oppose the bill, although his friends do not believe he will assume the responsibility of

With the practically unanimous and hearty support given the conference report by the Republican Representatives in the louse, it is believed that a sufficient number of Republican Senators cannot be found at the time of the final test voting to abandon the position of the Republican party upon the tariff question and sacrifice the results of nine months' continuous labor upon the bill. The Republicans who voted against the conference report—Messrs. Coleman and Kelly of Kansas—did so on account of the sugar schedule, and the Independent-Mr. Featherstone of Arkansas-because cotton ties were not placed on the free list.

Southeast Indiana Methodists.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. FRANKLIN, Ind., Sept. 27 .-- The Southeast Indiana Conference was opened this morning with devotional exercises, conducted by Rev. E. B. Rawls, of Greensburg. The minutes of the two sessions of Thursday were read and adopted. There were no minutes of Friday, as the conference had spent the day visiting the Indiana Conference at Martinsville. The work of the day consisted principally of routine reports in the forenoon and the memorial service in the afternoon. Rev. B. E. Morgan was made effective, and will probably be sent to Grace Church, Indian-T. P. Jenkins, W. W. Snyder, . P. Pell were given superannuated relation. The conference requested the bishop to appoint C. W. Hargitt a professor in Miami University, Ohio, Frank S. Stam, Wesley C. Crawford, Charles S. Norton and Charles W. Lewis were admitted to trial. Rev. James L. Funkhouser, from the United Brethren Church, and Rev. John H. Neber, from the Methodist Protestant Church, were received into the ministry of the conference. James C. Lewis and Elijah P. Brown were elected deacons. Resolutions requiring each presiding elder to make brief historic records of each charge in his district, to be passed to his successor, were adopted. A resolution requiring pastors and official boards to gather and deposit in places of security records of the workings of their charges was passed also. The conference passed a resolution declaring for the organization within the conference of a domestic missionary society, and the appointment of a committee to prepare conto next conference. The resolution makes the presiding elders a board

Lewis, Joseph Cotton, Joseph Tarkington, John W. Ray and Dr. Philip Gillett. The services were full of feeling and very impressive. Among the names of the deceased of the past year were some most familiar in the Methodist Church of the State. A portait of Rev. J. K. Pye, deceased, painted by Mr. Will Snyder, of Madison, will be presented to Mrs. Pye by the members of the conference.

An incident of the conference much remarked about as a thing hitherto unknown is the fact that not a single collection has been taken up during the present session. Rev. H. C. Weakly, superintendent of the Deaconess Home and Christ's Hospital, Cincinnati, addressed the con-ference this evening. The local pulpits and those of the Methodist churches of Indianapolis will be filled by members of the conference to-morrow. At the latter place Rev. M. L. Wells will supply Fletcher Place; J. H. Bickford, Roberts Park, and W. W. Snyder, Grace Church. Bishop Merrill will preach in the Methodist Church here in the forenoon.

The Coming of the Indian Messiah.

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—"I have not heard of any danger of an Indian uprising of any formidable proportions, but there never has been a time when the Indians could do has been a time when the Indians could do more damage than at present should they break out," said Adjt.-Gen. Robert Williams, of General Miles's staff, to-day. Gen. Williams's remark was in reply to a question concerning a published interview with one "Captain Trimbleton," at Pittsburg, in which the latter said that an Indian war was imminent. The Captain said the Indians had been spurred on by their "medicing men," who were predicting the coming cine men," who were predicting the coming of a Messiah, who would drive away the pale-faces and restore the tribes to their heritage.

"With regard to Captain Trimbleton I know nothing. There is no such officer in the army that I am aware of," continued General Williams, "I have heard before of the belief among the Indians that a Messiah who would destroy the whites was to come. The propaganda was first preached a year or more ago by a "medicine man" of the Shoshones on the upper end of the Big Horn valley. His tribe accepted the doctrine. Then it spread northward to the Arapahoes, on the other end of the Big Horn, and finally reached the Crows and Cheyennes on Tongue river. The Sioux may also have taken it up. I have not heard of its having reached the Indians around Fort Sill, in the Indian Territory. These latter have always been very quiet. The rapid spread of settlements in the West has increased the danger, should the Indians break out. the danger, should the Indians break out. All along western Kansas, eastern Colorado, Dakota, Montana, Wyoming and the Staked Plain of Texas and Oklahoma, there are many white settlers. The houses are a mile or so apart, and towns are few. This is just what the Indian wants when he goes on the war-path."

"Do you think concerted action by all the tribes in an outbreak possible?" "No; the tribal antipathies could scarcely be overcome even by their hatred for the whites. I do not think the Sioux and Crows could be made to affillate. They are hereditary enemies as far back as our knowledge of them goes. The Arapahoes and Shoshones might combine, but neither of them would be friends with the Sioux. So with the Comanches and Sioux. Around Fort Sill are the Apaches, Kiowas, Comanches, Wichitas, Tehucans, Keechees, Wacos, Delawares and Caddos. Most of these are but remnants of tribes. The Kicwas and Comanches are the strongest." "Do you consider the present military force in the Indian country sufficient to repress any outbreak?"

"In my judgment, yes. At Fort Sill there are seven companies of troops and six at Fort Reno. I think with experienced oficers in command there is no danger."

Seventh Indiana Cavalry Reunion.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. Marion, Ind., Sept. 27.—The Seventh Cavalry will hold its aunual reunion at Marion on Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 1 and 2. The Seventh Cavalry was in continual field service nearly the entire time of its enlistment, and experienced many hardships and losses. The Seventh was assigned to the First Brigade of Gen. Grierson's cavalry. In the memorable expedition of Gen. W. S. Smith to join Sherman at Meridian, in which Smith failed to connect, in the battle near Okaloona, Miss., called Ivy Farm, the Seventh was ordered to charge the rebel General Forest's line of infantry. Col. J. P. C. Shanks promptly carried out the order, but at the fearful cost of eighty-four men.
At the battle of Guntown, Miss., on June

10, 1864, the regiment was under command of Gen. Thomas M. Browne, who was painfully wounded. Capt. Joel Elliott was shot through the right lung in this battle. He recovered and was afterward killed in the Little Horn massacre. The regiment's conduct under a murderous artillery and infantry fire was considered praiseworthy enough for Gen. B. H. Grierson to issue the Seventh his thanks in a general order. After many hard marches and skirmishes, in the fallof 1864 the Seventh marched overland from Memphis to Little Rock, and there joined General Mower's command in the expedi-tion through Arkansas and Missouri after Generals Price and Marmaduke. Returning from Osage. Mo., to St. Louis, they proceeded to Memphis by steamer. On the 21st of December they started with General Grierson on another expedition. On the 28th Forrest's dismounted camp at Vernon, Miss., was surprised and captured. Large | Brooklyn.......76 quantities of rebel stores were destroye including sixteen railroad cars loaded with pontoons for Hood's army, and four thousand new English carbines. Grierson con-tinued his raid through Mississippi, the Seventh having another fight at Egypt Station, routing the Johnnies. During the spring of 1865 the regiment was actively engaged in scouting and doing provost duty on the Memphis & Charleston railroad until June, when it was ordered to Alexandria, La. On the 21st of July the regiment was consolidated into six companies. From Alexandria, La., the Seventh was sent to Hempstead, Tex. From the latter place they returned home. In the spring of 1865 a number of its members, while returning from rebel prisons, were lost on the ill-fated steamer Sultana. This regiment saw hard service and proved telf an efficient organization of plucky Hoosier boys.

Gen. Tom Browne returned from Washington to his home at Winchester last Tuesday in very poor health, but expects to attend the reunion.

Woman with Eight Living Husbands. WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 27 .- A most peculiar case came up in court this morning, when the case of Harry Molenbrook, charged by his wife Lavinie with desertion, was called. The prisoner was on hand and sat near his counsel, General McCartney. When the two entered court they were accompanied seven men, who immediately seats among the audience. the case was called the wife failed to respond. She was not in court and no attorney appeared in her be-half. "Who does this woman want to prosecute?" demanded General McCartney.

rising to his feet. "Why, she has eight living husbands right here in this court. "What's that?" asked the judge sharply, while the crowd listened breathlessly at the astounding revelation. "She has eight husbands in court," repeated General McCartney. "They'll respond if you call for them. "All the husbands of Lavinie Molenbrook stand up," ordered the judge, "and remain standing until counted," he added, as the seven men arose, and Mr. Molenbrook stood up to make the eighth.

"Case dismissed," said the judge, and the eight husbands marched slowly out of the court. Some of the men live in Wilkesbarre and the others in surrounding towns in the mining region. The much-married wife

Novel Predicament of a Village. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

New Castle, Ind., Sept. 27.—The new election law has placed the citizens of the village of Mooreland, this county, in a queer and unpleasant predicament. The law, which went into effect June 1, provides that all elections held thereafter shall be held under its provisions. By its requirements elections of officers for incorporated towns are held under the supervision of the board of trustees of the town, and the town clerk performs the duties required of county clerks in county and State elections. The citizens of county and State elections. The citizens of Mooreland held an election in May to determine whether they should become an incorporated town, and decided to do so by a large majority. Now they want to elect town officers to serve the remainder of the present town year, but having no efficers they do not know who is authorized to hold the election. Under the old law the township trustee would hold it, but he cannot do so under the new Australian law. Able counsel, employed for that purpose, have so far failed to discover who has the required authority, and are not likely to do so, as the new law has no provision in it for such cases.

such cases. Nez Perces on the War-Path. DENVER, Col., Sept. 27.—Sensational reports have been received here from Mullen, I. T., to the effect that settlers within a radius of fifty miles had organized for the radius of fifty miles had organized for the purpose of wiping out of existence the Nez Perce Indians, who for months past have amused themselves by burning towns, scalping the innocent and outraging defenseless women. Several days ago over two hundred were camped near Mullen. The band was composed of those who took part in the Nez Perce massacre of 1877, and were camped near the scene of the first outrage of that year. They had 400 ponies, many squaws and pappooses, and several painted warriors. They claim that the whites have no right to that country, and they requested them to leave, as this was their camping-ground before they were removed to the reservation at La Pivais, not far from Lewiston. The settlers in Camas prairie, in north Idaho, settlers in Camas prairie, in north Idaho, where, in 1877, the great depredations were committed, fearing that another uprising might occur, have now organized, and the first unfavorable report that reaches them will put an end to any further depredations on the part of the Indians.

Governor Campbell's Sharp Reply.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 27 .- Louis Reemelin, a member of the Board of Public Improvements of Cincinnati, to-night telegraphed to Governor Campbell, demanding to know whether the Governor had "charged him with crookedness." Governor Campbell answered to the effect that he had made no such charge. "But," said he, "I believe you to be dishonest, and that opinion is concurred in by every citizen of Cincinnati whom I have seen, or from whom I have heard within the last month. Whenever I have official charges to make against you or the Board of Public Improvements in the city of Cincinnati, I will select my own time and place and my own medium of communicating the same to the public.
